From the Pastor's Desk

My Dear People:

Father John Robinson was born and raised in Birmingham. He went to the minor seminary at St. Bernard for two years and then to Mt. St. Mary's seminary for six years. His passionate desire in life was to be a priest. This passion remained with him all of his life. He was assigned to the southern part of the Mobile-Birmingham diocese. When, in 1969, the diocese was split, Fr. Robinson became a priest of the Mobile diocese, where he served in different parishes. He served the longest at Holy Family. They love him, dearly, there. At retirement age he chose to come back to Birmingham, still a priest of Mobile, but with great volunteer service to St. Peter's.

In the 1970's, when there were a number of priests who left the priesthood to marry, Father John stayed the course of the celibate priesthood.

In my day in the seminary, we looked up, highly, to seminarians who were above us in studies. Fr. John was three years above me, so we never became close.

Father Robinson was the "quiet priest," except when he preached. Then he became most forceful for matters of social justice and other doctrines of the faith. He was a forerunner in having women as lectors and Extraordinary Ministers of the Eucharist.

In those last six years of his life, when I would see him with a back brace and a neck brace, my heart went out to him, and I thought of the words of a retreat master who, when talking to us seminarians, said that he felt most like a priest, not in the confessional or at the altar, but when he was suffering. I don't know about the theology of the statement, but the grain of truth never left me for 55 years and, so, I saw Fr. Robinson as a priest so close to Christ.

For the last six years Fr. John had multiple health problems that debilitated him. I will never forget the day, about two years ago, when I was in the office and Fr. John's driver came in and said that Fr. John was in the car in the parking lot and wanted to be anointed. He, who had anointed hundreds of people, was now asking to be anointed and received the sacrament with such devotion, reverence and appreciation. On that occasion, he paid me several undeserved compliments of encouragement. We priests live by the grace of God through the prayers of our people. It is Christ, Himself, who acts through all those sacred signs we call the sacraments. So, we don't deserve compliments, but need encouragement. So, we know how much any good we do comes from the grace of God.

The day before Fr. Robinson died, our great Minister of the Sick, Jane DeMeis, told me we needed to anoint him. He looked like he was "lingering" before the doors of heaven, as he seemed to be for some months. The next day, with the news of his death, Jane expressed regret. I expressed relief and gratitude to God, because Fr. John was ready for heaven.

When a dear friend of mine, Lt. McCormack, of the Homewood Police Department, was "lingering in suffering," he told me that it was more suffering than he deserved. I told him he was like Christ, more suffering than Jesus deserved, and to offer the suffering to God for sinners. That's the way it was with Fr. John Robinson, more suffering than he deserved, so he offered it up for others.

Last Sunday we wrote FPD on palliative care, which is making a person comfortable when there is no hope for a cure. It is relieving the pain, physically, through medication. However, there is another aspect of palliative care, which is mentally making a person comfortable, giving that person encouragement, love, and spiritual care. Fr. Robinson had one relative who was just such a person, Mary Jean Cox. Every Sunday we gave her two Hosts, one for herself and one in the pyx for Fr. Robinson. From heaven Fr. Robinson will be praying for all of us who remembered him so well; he will start with praying for Mary Jean, who spent endless hours every day feeding him physically and, most especially, feeding him with Jesus in the Eucharist.

Unwed Mother: Last Tuesday, as I was leaving the office, the front desk secretary told me there was a woman in the conference room who was six months pregnant, unwed, who had been sleeping in her car. She was crying in desperation. The child's father was physically abusive to the woman and left her. She had no family.

Since I was a chaplain for unwed mothers, while attending Catholic University during the summers in the early 1960's, before Roe v. Wade, I knew her difficulty, plus the huge advantage of putting a child up for adoption. We gave her money for better sleeping conditions and medical expenses, told her the advantages of putting the child up for adoption, and gave her the number of Catholic Family Services. She agreed to have the child and give him/her up for adoption.

Because we all give to Catholic Charities, Catholic Family Services will take complete charge of her and give parents a child for which they have longed, and for which they have been praying. Because you give to the parish charity fund, we could help her that very hour.

If you have not put your good will on a pledge card, there are pledge cards in the pews.

With prayers and blessings,
Father Muller
